Bond Cites Values of Cooperation For Ad Club Members

Corning Chamber of Commerce secretary gives timely talk at membership drive meting in American House Thursday — Salerno team leads. Other business.

The fundamentals of a good community are: good homes, good churches, good schools, good sanitary conditions, good protection and good fraternal spirit, C. W. Bond, secretary of the Corning Chamber of Commerce told members of the Addison Advertising Club and their guests Thursday night. The occasion was a membership drive meeting held under the direction of President Milton H. Crane and John B. Davis, chairman of the program committee.

The membership team captained by Charles Salerno is leading at this time, having secured the most points by securing additional members. The Rev. John V. Axtell was song leader at the meeting with Miss Janet Taylor as accompanist.

President Crane, umpire in the membership drive, announced there are 60 members in the club now, with 21 of these being new members. The goal of the club is 70 members.

Mr. Crane welcomed the new members and the guests and asked that they continue their interest in the club. He said the club needs their help to accomplish its objectives. These objectives are: Increased membership, a community pamphlet to induce industry and residents to come to Addison, secure the cooperation of business men on a sales day or sales days programs for Addison, the setting out of trees or shrubs to conceal the dump on West Front street, continue sponsorship of Troop 27 of the Boy Scouts, promote a cattle auction, consider worthwhile projects for the improvement of Addison as suggested by anyone whether club member or not, continue the community calendar and the promotion of a Christmas project for next year.

Mr. Bond was then introduced and congratulated the club on the progress being made toward community betterment and the far-reaching program being undertaken. He spoke of the world community and of the local community. Mr. Bond said in part". What affects other countries affects you for we do not live alone. Europe's problems make us conscious of our own community. We believe in the fact that every man is entitled to the pursuit of happiness, and where can you find that but in your own community. If all the world believed in that creed, there would be no wars.

"Some want fame, some want power, some wealth. And the men who want power forget their fellow men. Let us think of the after results of the war for the effects of that war will be felt for generations to come and future generations in America will play a big part in what happens after.

"Let us speak of our own community. Let us build it. We must care for some we have and must do for them. This is one of the foundations of living, doing for others. Things you do as a group are of benefit to your community and maks for better citizens.

"Collectively you can do many things. The world is looking for group activity. Some say individuality is being crushed. But let us work collectively in our community to do the necessary things that will make individual living better.

"Analyzing the situation is the first thing. Determine what you have and what is needed and lacking and bring them about. The work of the world is being done in groups. The time was in the cave days when the individual worked alone but there was little progress.

"Good leadership is an essential quality. And it is up to the people of a community to recognize good leadership and follow it. Good leadership has the ability to visualize things to be done. Every enterprise is the lengthening shadow of a man.

"The next step in the community betterment program is to organize Unless the vision can be organized it will never come true. There are leaders to lead and others just naturally follow. The third step in bettering your community is to deputize work in setting leaders to work and giving orders to accomplish the work. Supervision follows with the ability to follow through and finish.

"Health and proper sanitation, good fire and police protection, adequate transportation facilities, good streets, highways and walks are needed to attract people to your community, good schools attract men with families to live in good communities, churches are fundamental to any community and every man should belong to and support some church.

"This is your home. Make it the best community you can. An organization like yours has an important place in your community. You have learned to team up. Invite farmers to sit with you and discuss your common problems." Mr. Bond was given a rising vote of thanks for his talk.

President James LaManna of the Corning Chamber of Commerce brought greetings from that body and congratulated the club on its objectives.

The club members voted to make every other meeting an evening meeting for the next three months to make it more convenient for many merchants and business men to attend more meetings. This is a trial period and will be abandoned if insufficient interest is taken in the evening meetings.

The next meeting will be a noon meeting in charge of Matthew F. Whitmore. The meeting of February 15 will be an evening meeting for ladies. Melvin G. Hubbs is chairman of the program and he will be assisted by Stuart H. Bean and Glenn L. Sprague. That will be an all local program.

The meeting of Thursday was attended by 55 men. The program closed with a series of recordings of famous people and events in the history of Europe during the hectic days preceding the Poland and Finnish battles, an unusual program. This was provided by the speaker.

Young Farmers Hear Talk on Soil Conservation

A regular semi-monthly meeting of the out-of-school group of young farmers was held in the agriculture rooms of the Addison High School Monday night.

The meeting was presided over by president Joseph Coleman assisted by Frank Finnerty. A short business meeting was held after which Mr. Tauti of the Soil Conservation Service, whose headquarters are located at Bath, showed the group motion pictures concerning this work in the Bath area. The pictures showed the construction and the working of diversion ditches, planting and harvestng on the contour and strip cropping. Much of the work on soil erosion control has been done on potato land in the northern part of the county. By the use of diversion ditches, strip cropping and planting on the contour yields of 150 to 200 bushels per acre even though only a couple of inches of rain fell during the growing season.

After showing the pictures many questions were asked by those in attendance regarding the soil conservation service, the building of diversion strip cropping and so forth.

Stanley Jimmerson and Paul Kane, food committee, served coffee and doughnuts. President Coleman appointed Paul Richtmyer and Thomas Reagan as food committee for the next meeting which will be held February 5. Nineteen were in attendance at Monday night's meeting.

Volunteers Take Christmas Lights From Main St.

The volunteers who constructed and hung the Christmas tree lights in December went to work Monday night and now the lights and fixtures are all stored away under lock and key for next Christmas time and the years thereafter. It was a swell job in the estimation of many people and there seemed to be a unanimous agreement among merchants and observers that the lighting system in Addison at Christmas time was equal to and surpassed many of the villages much larger in size throughout the southern tier.

The fellows who hung the lights and took them down deserve a great deal of credit. Theodore Laffkas cut wood spools for winding the wire and all cartons of the bulbs were saved and the bulbs placed in their original cartons.

The reason the lights and fixtures were not removed before was owing to cold weather. At that the fixtures have been removed before those in other communities where paid help was engaged to do the work.

Those who worked Monday night to take the lights and fixtures down and pack them away were James Barkalow, Mike Triches, Wyckoff Sherwood, Walter McDermott, Walter Aldrich, John Sanford, John B. Davis, John Bullock and Dixon Curtis.

The Welles Hose Company members are responsible for keeping the equipment. None of it is to be used for any other purpose as it it felt that if taken out for another purpose wires will be cut to fit the occasion and bulbs used disappear and in time nothing would be left of the material, which under present plans will last several years.

Welles Hose Co. Sponsors Show Here Feb. 22-23

Welles Hose Company members will promote an old fashioned minstrel show here February 22 and 23, Washington's birthday and the day following. Much more will be heard about this affair later from members of the company. They have secured a professional entertainment company to care for the details of direction, costuming and advertising and promotion. Decision to promote this show was made at a meeting of the company held last week.

SENATOR BORAH

The short, fatal illness of Senator Borah brought expressions of regret on every hand. From Democrats as well as Republicans, from rich and poor, from liberals and conservatives came words of sorrow that life's end had come for the Lion of Idaho.

It would be hard to find words to express or summarize in this brief space, the life of this truly great American. He marched proudly to the front-stage of national politics before the World War and held the place for nearly three decades. He swayed international affairs with his oratory and fighting spirit following the war, yet never reached the pinnacle of political ambition to which many a less able man has ascended. He would fight tenaciously for a small matter of principle, yet could be unmoved by a movement which appeared to theaten the freedom of men. Not that he refused to break a lance in a battle affecting the multitude—probably the most far-reaching fight of Borah's life was his battle with President Wilson over the League of Nations.

Borah believed to the letter in Washington's admonition against foreign entanglements. He was convinced that America has no place mixing into the perennial quarrels of European nations—a belief which millions of his fellow citizens now share. The Idahoan's determined leadership in that senatorial battle over the League not only killed Wilson's fondest brain-child, but it broke the former President's heart as well. Some said that Borah led those forensics for personal aggrandizement, but subsequent history does not bear out this contention. Then if ever was the Idaho man's time to make his bid for the presidency; while in the prime of life and riding the wave of victory over Wilson. But strangely he made no real effort to gain delegates to the Republican convention in 1920, and a senator was nominated and elected who was a mere Senate page boy compared to Borah.

Borah, known as the "man who rode alone", never made a gesture toward the presidency until 1936 and by that time he had not the health to conduct the kind of a crusade needed to win. The old, unquenchable spirit was only smoldering in a body no longer able to wage the kind of fight the country always expected Borah to wage. Yet his work was not ended and although a supporter of Roosevelt in many matters he was a monument of strength in the background of the Senate battle against the President's court packing measure.

Now the European war has raised a new curtain of fear here that we might be led to participation, Borah had again become the most vocal isolationist in the country. He was determined to use all his strength to keep us out of war, a determination frustrated in the end by the grim power which makes all humans impermanent.

Millions in our land are gravely fearful that Borah's death may mean the loss of one of our greatest barriers to war interference. For certain it is, that no man in this land was so feared by the European statesmen who have been striving to wheedle us into a second venture off the deep end of pulling British and French chestnuts out of the fire. Against that threat there has steadfastly stood the uncompromising form of the Lion of Idaho. Will the power politicians now succeed in exuding enough propaganda to win our leaders to a war venture? Or will we still be deterred by the memory of this lonesome, courageous man who would give his all in a fight to preserve the principle of American isolation, yet would not stir himself in any strong effort to become president?

May Borah's isolation policy steer us off the rocks even after his death.

BANKS AND NEWSPAPERS

Newspapers and banks have at least one thing in common, in the opinion of the Ouachita Citizen of West Monroe, Louisiana. Both of them get plenty of criticism.

"The most difficult task that we can think of at the moment is to run a bank or a newspaper to please everyone", says the Citizen. "If the banker is conservative he is charged with not being helpful to the community. If he lends the depositors' money too freely he is criticized when the borrower can't repay and the bank closes. The newspaper man who prints all the news regardless of who makes it, is criticized and called sensational. If he leaves it out he is charged of being afraid to print the news. The best plan for the banker or the newspaper man to follow is to run his business the way he thinks it should be run and let the critics criticize".

It would be an interesting experiment if "self-starting" critics were given charge of the nation's banks and newspapers for a period. It's a safe bet that they'd rapidly learn a sad lesson—and an equally safe bet that the public which depends on banks to safeguard its money and newspapers to give it the news of the world, would take a terrific beating. Amateur banking and amateur journalism would be a far cry from the real professional articles.

Banking has given the American people and American business unparalleled service—it furnished the financial lifeblood that built this nation in world record time. The American newspaper gives the people better, more complete and more accurate coverage of what is happening a mile away or ten thousand miles away than the press of any other country. The bankers and the editors will go on doing these vital jobs while "the critics criticize".

REAL ECONOMY NEEDED

Advocates of economy in government have taken heart a little with the gesture Congress has made in paring off a few millions here and there from the President's huge budget submitted at the opening session. But those who believe in stable finances still have their fingers crossed, and well they may, for it is not the habit of legislators to become economical with public funds on the eve of a national election.

In the first place no one was fooled when Mr. Roosevelt capped his second term's succession of deficit budgets with a 1941 estimate which belied all the accompanying words about economy. Huge new appropriations for national defense were just a new form of spending the people's money, and the relief cut could be restored at a convenient season. Many have said the executive's budget was merely a half-year affair sent to Congress with the intent of additions later—later meaning after election. Some of these are getting a little assurance from the action of both the House and Senate in cutting down certain items of expense, yet it is altogether too early to predict our Congressmen are now converted to the theory of economy.

A straw in the wind was shown when several millions were slashed off navy and army appropriations and then partially nullified by a new farm hand-out of some 11 millions for parity payments.

The fact of the matter is that Congress finds itself in something of a dilemma. Congressmen know there is a strong groundswell of opinion towards economy in government. They know they have steered our government perilously near the 45 billion debt limit, and further, to raise the limit in an election year would be dangerous for many who hope to continue enjoying the office. To assess new taxes this year would bring unpopularity also, so many of our legislators are making this early gesture which looks like economy while searching ways and means of fooling the people and getting by with the appearance. Bernard Kilgore, Wall Street Journal Washington correspondent reports the spending bloc will probably fall back on the method of "write-up of assets" to provide needed funds without new taxes or officially raising the debt limit.

Actually Congressmen are foolish to grab at such spurious methods of deceit at pretended economy. To practice REAL economy would be unpopular, of course to some people, but it would bring us lasting results and set us permanently on the road to better times. What we need is less juggling of figures and real progress toward recovery which can only be attained through drastic cutting of government expense.

PROTECTING THE CONSUMER

The American Home Economics Association has announced a "Platform for Consumer Relations with Business". Its purpose is to define the consumer point of view and to help consumers work with producers, distributors and related groups in an effort to improve marketing practices.

The platform says, in part: "The goal of co-operative work between consumers and business should be: An intelligent and sympathetic understanding of the problems of business by consumers, and the problems of consumers by business; active work on the development of useful and accurate definitions, standards and performance specifications for consumer goods and services which will make intelligent buying and selling possible; active promotion of the use of sound factual information now available in the distribution, promotion and sale of consumer goods."

Work of this character can obviously be of considerable value to the consumer, and to manufacturing and retail business as well. But if the consumer is to be adequately protected, another step must be taken—and that is organized consumer opposition to unsound, unnecessary laws whose result is to reduce merchandising efficiency. Practically every state has laws falling in this category now on the statute books. They range from class taxes to laws permitting price fixing.

The whole tendency of punitive and class taxation is to inflate the cost of living. In brief, such legislation, which encourages waste, penalizes efficiency and discourages competition, is one of the most serious problems the consumer faces.

This very session a bill has been introduced in Albany which has TNT for retail businessmen. Designed to curtail price-cutting it could become another wedge driven into the fabric of our once free system of enterprise. The retail merchants who might be enticed into thinking this bill was a good thing should stop to consider that every fancied benefit coming through restraint of trade by government regulation has some corresponding drawback. And the government regulation always costs money—the taxxpayers' money.

Dish For This Week

Nuts "dress up" simple dishes and at the same time add extra nourishment and flavor. Combined with beans and other ingredients, peanuts make delicious croquettes, which may serve as a substantial cold-weather dish. The following recipe is suggested by the New York State College of Home Economics:

Bean and Peanut Croquettes

2 cups of bean pulp
1 cup of peanuts, chopped
2 tablespoons of fine-chopped onion
1 tablespoon of chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons of melted butter or other fat
3 tablespoons of flour
1 cup of canned tomatoes
1½ teaspoons of salt
⅛ teaspoon of pepper
¼ cup of dried bread crumbs

To prepare the bean pulp, soak 1½ cups of dried beans overnight in enough water to cover them. In the morning drain them, add 4 cups of water and simmer until the beans are tender. Remove them from the fire, drain, and put them through a coarse sieve.

Cook the onion and green pepper in the fat, add the flour, stir, and then add the juice from the tomatoes to make a thick sauce. Add all the remaining ingredients and mix them thoroughly. Cool and shape the mixture into croquettes, roll in the beaten egg to which 1 tablespoon of water has been added, then roll in the sifted dry bread crumbs. Let the croquettes stand to form a crust, then fry them in deep fat at a temperature of 375 degrees Fahrenheit until the crumbs are brown. Drain them on soft paper and serve at once. The croquettes may be served with a tomato sauce or ketchup.

A lunch or supper menu might include: bean and peanut croquettes, buttered broccoli, apple and celery salad, brown bread and butter, deep dish apricot tapioca, milk for the children and coffee, tea or milk for the adults.

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Value of Soybeans

W. B. F. asks: "What value has the soybean in the general feeding of cows and for milk production?"

Professor F. P. Bussell of the plant breeding department replies: "The soybean is a good source of protein when mixed and ground with oats, barley and corn. If good yields of the beans are obtained, it may be cheaper to grow a protein supply in this way than to buy it in purchased feeds.

"A Jefferson county grower got 35 bushels an acre of Cayuga soybeans in 1938. It would seem that soybeans would be profitable if yields of 25 to 30 bushels to the acre can be obtained.

We have sent you more information that deals with the growing of soybeans for hay, silage and grain, and also mentions their value for use on dairy farms".

Peach Outlook

B. M. C. inquires about the outlook for peaches in 1940.

The answer, from Cornell bulletin E-425 "The New York State 1940 Agricultural Outlook": "Since 1932, production of peaches in the United States has averaged lower than during the preceding ten years. In 1939, the crop was 20 per cent larger than the previous five-year average.

"Peach growing has paid New York growers relatively well during recent years, and the immediate outlook for peaches seems to be more favorable than for most other fruits grown in this state. New plantings, however, are reported to have been rather heavy in recent years, especially in the early producing sections.

"The long-term outlook is not so favorable as the immediate outlook. It will depend on whether demand improves as rapidly as peach production increases".

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN W. STERLING COLE

Roosevelt "Not a Candidate"

A question which has been on the lips of most persons for the past few months is "will Roosevelt seek a third term?" Considering his personality and flare for upsetting precedents it has always been a feeling that he would like to be the first person in the history of the nation who was elected President for the third successive term. However, after listening to his message at the opening day of Congress and to his address at the Jackson Day Dinner here in Washington, together with other bits of straws, I have concluded that he soon will announce his intention not to seek reelection. In both those addresses he did not have the spirit, the drive, determination and fight which has been characteristic of him in the past. It is now currently rumored that the announcement of his declination will take place in the near future. In all probability, the movement to draft him will gain strength and it is doubtful if he will strenuously discourage it.

Chief Justice Ousted

The House passed a bill this week which will force the removal of Chief Justice Marshall from the bronze chair in which he has been sitting for many decades at the foot of the steps on the west entrance to the Capitol and cause it to be placed at some suitable spot on the grounds surrounding the new Supreme Court building. The west entrance is seldom, if ever, used either by persons on Capitol Hill or sightseers and it was felt that the memory of this great Chief Justice whose decisions so vitally affected the unity of our country, was not given the prominence it deserves.

Bertrand H. Snell

Among recent visitors to the Capitol was the former leader of the Republicans, both when they were in power and since they have been in the minority. Mr. Snell voluntarily retired from the Congress last year and his successor, Wallace E. Pierce, was stricken in the House Chamber during the President's opening message. For a time there was speculation that Mr. Snell might seek to regain his old seat but he has assured us that life out of Congress is altogether too pleasant for him to even consider it.

1940 Census

Soon there will be knocking at the doors of millions of American homes the decennial census-taker who will have a list of some 250 questions which you not only are expected to answer truthfully but if you fail to do so will subject you to a fine or imprisonment. For refusal to answer a question the law prescribes a fine of $100 or 60 days in jail; if you wilfully give incorrect information the penalty is $500 or one year in jail. Fortunately, in the 150 years of census taking, the Census Bureau has rarely resorted to compulsion.

Widows' and Orphans' Pensions

The American Legion has sponsored a measure now before the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation which, if adopted, would authorize payment of a pension to the surviving members of a deceased veteran's family, irrespective of the cause of his death. The widow would receive $30 per month, plus $8 for the first child and $4 for each additional one, and if the mother is not living, the first child would receive $15, two children $22 and three children $30 with $3 for each additional child and all to be equally divided. As yet no action has been taken by the Committee on this measure.

Labor's Attorneys

Representative Hoffman (Republican) Michigan, invited the House to visit the special committee investigating the Labor Board and take a look at the Board's women lawyers who have been testifying. "You can tell", Hoffman said from the floor, "That they haven't changed a diaper or hung out a washing".

'Swanee River' Starts Saturday At Fox Theatre

On Saturday of this week, the Fox Theatre presents "Swanee River", 20th Century-Fox's story of Stephen C. Foster, the great American troubadour,, filmed in Technicolor. What Robert Burns was to Scotland and Thomas Moore to Ireland, Stephen Foster is to America. His songs embody the very soul of his country and spring inspirationally from its rich earth. What American is there who at some time has not hummed sung or whistled "The Old Folks at Home" (Swanee River), "Old Black Joe", "My Old Kentucky Home," "De Camptown Races", "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair," "Oh! Susanna!" or "Ring, Ring de Banjo"?

"Swanee River" is said to be a magnificent picture because it combines the immortal melodies of Foster with the romantic drama of his life, so that it is more than a glorious musical cavalcade of one of the most romantic periods in American history.

Darryl F. Zanuck, in charge of production for 20th Century-Fox, selected Don Ameche to portray the great American troubadour, with Andrea Leeds as his sweetheart and wife, Jane McDowell, for whom Foster wrote "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair."

"Swanee River" faithfully tells the story of Foster's life as he actually lived it. His life contained all the dramatic ingredients—all the romance, the comedy and the color—which go into the making of a great motion picture. Few liberties were taken with the facts, for there was no need to do more than portray them faithfully.

In beautiful Technicolor, "Swanee River" takes moviegoers back to the romantic, colorful days of Foster's time when minstrels and river boats were popular. It shows his happy young manhood, depicts his early struggles, the introduction of his songs by Christy's Minstrels, his meeting with and marriage to "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair", portrays his rapid rise to fame and happy life with his wife and daughter.

Then, with relentless realism, "Swanee River" shows Foster's emotional instability, his disillusions and disappointments, his gradual disintegration and eventual death in a shabby Bowery rooming house.

THE THINGS MEN DO—
LIVE AFTER THEM

The passing of Asa T. Smith has created a deep sense of lasting personal loss in all who were associated with him. But, providentially, Mr. Smith had made arrangements to have the Funeral Establishment of H. P. Smith and Son carried on under the management of Jeffrey Smith who has been closely associated with him in the Funeral Work for the past six years. It will be the aim of those who carry on to give the same kind thought and deep consideration to the people of this community as the firm of H. P. Smith and Son have rendered during their forty-nine years of service.

Benj Franklin Reviewed For DAR Members

The life and times of Benjamin Franklin as revealed in the book "Benjamin Franklin" by Carl Van Doren was the topic of a paper read by Mrs. Charles Crane to members of Onwentsia Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution Friday afternoon. The occasion was the monthly meeting held in the home of Mrs. Melvin G. Hubbs with Mrs. Alfred Chatfield as assistant hostess. Mrs. Crane reviewed the book with extracts in the words of the writer and of the main character of the book, who played such an important part in the early days of United States history. The talk was given in the week of the anniversary of his birth, January 17, 1706.

Regent Mrs. Winfield S. Long presided at the business meeting held before the speaking program. At the conclusion of Mrs. Crane's talk, a supper and social time was held for those attending the meeting.

Those present were: Mrs. Long, Mrs. Wilfred Miller, Mrs. George Freeman, Mrs. V. A. Manley, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. Ray S. Brown, Mrs. Chatfield, Mrs. Fred Clark and daughter, Mrs. Cornelius Murphy of Huntington, L. I., Mrs. Edwin C. Smith, Mrs. Carrie Saxton, Mrs. B. B. Noble, Mrs. Irving R. Gladstone, Mrs. Cluade Martin, Mrs. Maple Woodhouse, Mrs. Frances Hoyt and the hostess, Mrs. Hubbs.

Farm Directors Meet and Elect

The executive committee of the Steuben County Farm Bureau meets Friday, January 26 to elect officers, to appoint standing committees and to adopt the 1940 program of work.

Chairman of the board is A. E. Scudder of Painted Post; Leon Dennis of Canisteo is vice chairman; Murray Barnes of Avoca, secretary and Edward Heinaman of Bath, treasurer.

Other members of the board ore Lee Edmond, Cohocton; Aaron Putnam, Wheeler; Fred Mehlenbacher, Wayland; Clair Bennett, Howard; Aden Ingalls, Fremont.

With an enrollment of 1,327, and with a program that surpasses all previous efforts, a successful year in 1940 is in prospect, Farm Bureau officers state.

RAMBLER

This is the much dreaded "regents week" in the schools of the Empire State. Ever since I can remember there has been an argument over the relative merits of the regents system and educators suggest it is the best until something else comes along. In the meantime some boys and girls go all to pieces getting ready for them and during the regents.

—o—

And speaking of schools, I hear where the state aid for schools has been restored in Governor Lehman's budget. This will mean about $8,000 additional for Addison School during the coming year as compared to last year.

—o—

The fellows who put up the Christmas lights along Main street took them down Monday night and were just as workmanlike in taking them down as in putting them up. The people of the community owe that group of volunteer workers a deep debt of gratitude and as one interested in the project I thank them most sincerely for their work.

—o—

Young Harry Laffkas is one young fellow who is going to be glad to see the snow come. His father, Ted, built him a streamlined snowmobile and now all that is needed to show it off is some snow.

—o—

I guess living in the Southern Tier has some compensations for we sure avoided the great snow storms of the week-end which tied up traffic from Rochester to Buffalo and vicinity. Can you imagine snow drifts 15 feet high?

—o—

Ad Club members are to be congratulated on their program for the coming year. Some objectives which appeal to me are: the promotion of sales days for Addison business men, the promotion of a Christmas project, the preparing of a community pamphlet to induce industry and home owners to settle here and the promotion of a cattle auction. All are good projects and will aid Addison if carried out.

—o—

I'm afraid the cattle auction may be a little late as a project owing to the number of them in the vicinity. There is one most every day in the week in some nearby community. However, Addison is a hub for a large area and should this project be carried out, whether on a large or small scale, it will benefit some farmers in this vicinity and thus indirectly aid Addison.

—o—

Europe's cold weather considerably upset things all over, for the cold spell sure held this territory in its grip for several days, in fact the continued low on the thermometer held longer than many old timers can remember.

Knights Play H'port Friday

The Addison Knights will play in Hammondsport Friday night in a league contest. The locals have been winning all their league games most of them by close margins. However on the Hammondsport court the locals hope to be able to win by a larger score than on the home court owing to a knowledge of the defensive game of the Hammondsport squad and also with the increased experience of eight games behind them so far this season.

Coach Miller's charges have been practicing noons and nights and have developed into a much speedier group than was anticipated at the opening of the season. The team is composed of veterans of last year's squad, which adds much to their knowledge of the game.

Several local fans will accompany the team to the Steuben County winery center for the contest Friday.

Industry Leaders Address Egg Producers Feb. 1

Steuben poultrymen meet at Bath Thursday, February 1 to hear what leaders of industry have to say about the marketing of eggs in an all-day parley arranged by the farm bureau.

The program begins at 11 o'clock with a colored motion picture of the developments of the embryo in the egg, shown by courtesy of a leading feed manufacturer.

Following a basket picnic for which the Farm Bureau will furnish coffee, the meeting convenes in the auditorium of the Bath Grange Hall at one o'clock.

Prominent on the program is A. Van Wagenen, chairman of the marketing committee of the Northeastern Poultry Council, who will discuss the various egg marketing organizations of the northeastern states, will explain their organization and method of operation. A member of the marketing staff of the College of Agriculture, Mr. Van Wagenen has long made a study of egg marketing, is considered to be one of the best informed men on that subject in the United States.

E. J. Mortimer of the Wayne County Farm Bureau will explain the method by which progressive poultrymen of that county are marketing quality eggs at a premium price.

Another speaker is Gilbert M. Burr, secretary of the Bradco Egg Producers Cooperative which is marketing the eggs of some 600 members. Market Reporter Julius Kremberg is expected to be present to discuss market conditions in New York City.

A feature of the meeting is to be an Egg Show open to all producers of the county. The exhibits of one dozen should be placed not later than 11 o'clock the morning of February 1.

This is the third of the series of the winter poultry meetings sponsored by the Steuben County Farm Bureau. The public is invited.

"Help Yourself Refreshments" are a neat trick for Informal Parties

says Dorothy Greig

Diced Ham in Chicken-Asparagus Sauce served over Steamed Rice and Egg Slices is good buffet party fare

THE "help yourself" idea of serving party refreshments spreads and spreads. Placing everything on one big table and inviting guests to serve themselves pleases everybody.

Men like it because it offers opportunity to show how gallant and useful they can be in waiting on ladies fair; and women enjoy it because it keeps the men in circulation. Need more be said!

Refreshments of this type also appear to be no trouble to the hostess and that is probably one secret of their charm. Of course, as every women knows, any refreshments require planning. The work is greatly simplified, however, when simple hot dishes like this one are served. It consists of hot rice and hard cooked eggs with a diced ham in chicken-asparagus sauce to go over them. Set out the rice and eggs in one dish and the sauce in a big bowl next to it. Guests do their own ladling and serving:

Diced Ham in Chicken-Asparagus Sauce

The sauce:

1 can condensed asparagus soup
1 can condensed chicken soup
¾ cup milk
1 cup ham, cut into ⅜ inch cubes

Mix the chicken soup into the asparagus soup. Then add the milk and diced ham. Heat, but do not boil.

The Rice & Eggs:

5 cups steamed hot rice
3-4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Put the rice in a serving dish and place the egg slices in the rice. Serve portion on plate and put the "Diced Ham in Chicken-Asparagus Sauce" over the rice. Serves 6-7.

Another good hunch is to have on the table a cold dish on the order of a fancy salad. The following is a highly decorative affair—a creamy chicken mousse topped by jellied red cranberry:

Cranberry Chicken Mold

Red Layer—Jellied Cranberry

*1½ cups cranberry orange relish
1 package lemon flavored gelatine
1 cup hot water
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Dissolve the lemon flavored gelatine in the hot water. Then add the cranberry-orange relish and lemon juice. Pour into a mold and place in refrigerator until firm, then cover with Chicken Mousse.

* To make the cranberry orange relish, put 4 cups of cranberries through meat grinder. Pare an orange, removing seed and white membrane. Then grind pulp and orange rind. Mix with cranberries and add 2 cups of sugar. Let stand a while before using.

White Layer—Chicken Mousse

1 can condensed chicken soup
1 egg, separated
2 teaspoons gelatine (softened in 2 tablespoons water)
1 cup chicken
¼ cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt and pepper

Sprinkle the gelatine on the cold water and let it soften. Strain the chicken soup and heat it in the upper part of the double boiler. Then put the rice, chicken and celery from the soup and the chicken through the food chopper, using the fine blade. Beat the egg yolk and add the hot soup to it, then cook until slightly thickened in the double boiler. Pour the hot mixture over the gelatine and stir until dissolved. Cool and when it begins to congeal, fold in the ground chicken and rice, lemon juice, seasonings, beaten egg white and whipped cream. Pour mixture on jellied cranberry layer and let stand in refrigerator until firm. Turn out on lettuce, chicory or watercress.

Northside Tops Addison Knights 34 to 19, Sat.

Northside's basketeers showed better form on the home court last Friday night than in Addison and as a result defeated the Knights 34 to 19. The Knights were held scoreless in the opening frame while the Bengals were piling up an 11 point margin.

This was a non-league game for both teams. At the halfway mark the winners were ahead 15 to 5 and at the three-quarter mark were out in front 24 to 9.

The losers did not get into their stride until the final quarter when Thomson, center for the Addison squad dropped four field goals in rapid succession. However the Corningites were in good form and quickly made up for the four by a series of rapid passes and evened up the scoring for the quarter.

Root assisted Thomson in upholding the high scoring for the Knights, scoring eight points. They led the field in scoring. However the Northsiders scattered their scoring with eight men doing the scoring of the 34 points while for Addison Root and Thomson were the only ones to score two field goals.

The game marked a let down for Addison, marking their second defeat of the season, both at the hands of Northside, after winning five games and tying one.

Friday the Knights go to Hammondsport for a tough game and Northside meets Bath.

Alfred Treasurer Resigns After 29 Yeads Service

Alfred, Jan.— The treasurership of Curtis F. Randolph at Alfred University, spanning more than a quarter of a century, saw the University registration grow from 146 to 640; the endowment grow from $371,000 to $1,088,000; the property from $171,000 to $1,022,000 and the payroll from $12,725 to $105,000. For many of the 28 years he was actualiy business manager of the University.

In 1911 he began with six or eight sets of account books; in 1939 he kept about 16 sets. In 1911 the University receipts and disbursements totaled $74,000; in 1939, $575,000. The University Library bought 397 books in 1911; in 1912 over 1200. In 1911 there were about 30 graduates; in 1939, there were 122.

"As treasurer, and for a considerable part of the time business manager of Alfred University, Mr. Randolph was an outstanding officer", writes President J. Nelson Norwood. "His most notable characteristics were his accuracy, his carefulness, his conservatism in judging regarding expenditures and income in presenting his annual budgets ad other reports; and his fairness in dealing with all, associated with him. He had the pleasing capacity of having the students leave his office in a friendly attitude toward him, even though he had had to deny their request for aid. As treasurer he was extremely kindhearted and many times assisted students with loans or even small gifts from his own pocket. He has made a record as the chief financial officer of Alfred University which those coming after him will find an inspiration, but also something difficult to equal."

Auditors have been very enthusiastic about the condition of the University books he kept. At one time they wrote:

"It is with particular pleasure that we comment again upon the very adequate financial records of the University;" and at another time:

"Alfred has the most complete and comprehensive set of ledgers over which we have cast an alert and error-spotting eye:"

In 1936 Mr. Randolph was given an alumni citation for outstanding service to the University; the 1939 Kanakadea, published by the junior class in 1935, was dedicated to him. In 1939 he was honored with the degree of master of business administration from Alfred University.

"THE AMERICAN BOY seems to understand a boy's problems and considers them in such a sympathetic and helpful way It gives advice and entertaining reading on every subject in which a young fellow is interested. It is particularly helpful in sports. I made our school baseball team because of playing tips I read in THE AMERICAN BOY".

Many famous athletes in all sports credit much of their success to helpful suggestions received from sports articles carried in THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine. That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all-worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

For a light supper serve OMELET

suggests Dorothy Greig

WHEN mother declared, "We're having omelet for supper tonight," that was firm notice that all hand washing must be done before supper call. No straggling was permitted. "This is one dish that simply won't wait for slow pokes," she would say. And, of course, an omelet should be eaten hot and fresh from the pan, while it is light and tender.

A supper omelet can be varied in a dozen different ways. A sprinkling of grated cheese or crisp bacon bits, for instance, gives it sharp zest. Folded over creamed chicken or vegetables or served with a thick sauce, it takes on hearty substance.

And speaking of sauces, here is one that's wonderfully savory with omelet. Spoon it on before folding and serve it over the top, too:

Omelet with Savory Sauce

The Sauce:
2 tablespoons onions, chopped
1 tablespoon green pepper, chopped
2 tablespoons butter
1 can condensed tomato soup
½ cup mushrooms, cooked

Sauté the chopped onion and green pepper in the butter until soft, but not brown. Then add the condensed tomato soup and the ½ cup cooked mushrooms.

The Omelet itself:
6 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
Pinch of pepper
3 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons butter

Beat the eggs until well mixed; then add seasonings and water and mix again. Melt the butter in a pan and place over a moderate flame. As the omelet cooks, lift the edges and tip the pan so that the uncooked egg flows under the cooked portion of the omelet. When bottom is browned, put three tablespoons of Savory Sauce in the omelet and fold over or roll. Serve omelet on a platter or plate and put more sauce over or around it. Serves 3-4.

Future Farmers Annual Meet In Bath Friday Afternoon

Teachers of agriculture in county to conduct classes in judging and identification for over 200 boys of county schools—Basketball championship also to be decided.

The regular mid-winter rally of the Steuben County Future Farmers of America will be held at the Bath High School, Friday. It is expected that more than two hundred boys representing the fifteen schools in the county which offer vocational work in agriculture will be present.

The morning program will be given over to the preparation of the judging contestants from each school for the judging events which are to be held at Cornell during Farm and Home Week.

The teachers of the county will give two hours of intensive work on the following subjects: Cattle judging, horse judging, potato judging milk judging, seed identification, plant disease indentification, shop work, poultry judging. Lawrence Deidrick of Painted Post and Leonard Palmer of Corning Northside will teach horse and cattle judging to the same group of boys. Milk judging will be taught by Wayne Crandall of Canisteo, poultry judging by Frank Finnerty, Addison; shop by Harold Puterbaugh, Troupsburg; seed identification by Frank Reeves, Campbell; potato judging, Frank Collings, Prattsburg and plant diseases by a representative of the school of agriculture at Alfred. Other teachers in the county will aid in the various contests.

At one o'clock a county meeting of all the chapters in the county will be held, with Paul Kane and Frank Finnerty of Addison in charge. Topics to be discussed are county degrees, county awards and election of county officers.

At one thirty the county basketball tournament will take place. For the first time in seven years schools other than Addison are expected to win. Canisteo which has already defeated Addison, Corning Northside and Campbell are prime favorites now but any school may spring a surprise and win.
